WHO DO YOU KNOW?

Your Network Brainstorming Workbook

Career Resource Provided By:

Tammeca Riley, MS, CPRW

info@consult-ipmg.com www.infinitepotentialresumes.com

Who Do You Know? Your Network Brainstorming Worksheet

The more people you connect with in your job search, the more help you can get with your job search. This worksheet is designed to help you identify your contacts in your network. Print out this worksheet and write in the specific names of people you know within each of the areas listed.

List friends, relatives, parents of children's friends, parents of your friends, relatives

PERSONAL CONTACTS

f friends, club members, associations, military service personnel, orority/fraternity, cousins, neighbors, sports team members

BUSINESS CONTACTS

st current co-workers, previous co-workers, previous managers, consultants, endors, suppliers, retirees, seminar/conference/workshop attendees, business wners, competitors, clients, customers, venture capitalists, members of industressociations, contacts you make at conventions and job fairs

THIRD-PARTY CONTACTS

t accountants, doctors, real estate brokers, financial davisors, bankers, torneys, dentists, mortgage bankers and brokers, insurance agents, travel gents, angel investors, venture capitalists.

EDUCATIONAL CONTACTS

classmates of classmates,	ary, middle, ar and friends, a other alumni rmer professo	llumni associ of your schoo	ation contact ols, university	ts, graduate s	school	;e

COMMUNITY CONTACTS

LList civic and political leaders you know, librarians, clergy or ministers, Chambers of Commerce members, members of community groups (Kiwanis, Rotary, Scouts), people you meet while volunteering, and health club members

ANYONE ELSE?

Did we miss anyone? Who else do you know that hasn't already been listed?

Next, prioritize your list. From your entire list of contacts, who are the 10 people you should contact first? Who can help you the most?

1.
2.
3.
4.
5.
6.
7.
8.
9.
10.			